

Recent Legal Decisions in Employee Benefits, Labor and Employment Law

Katherine Hesse of Murphy Hesse Toomey & Lehane, LLP, will cover this year's major court decisions in the areas of benefits, labor and employment law. Relevant case law and the impact of these court decisions on employers will be discussed in detail. She will also discuss how employers can take steps to insulate themselves from liability. Katherine provides a similar annual overview at the ISCEBS Symposium.

Greater Boston Chapter members can bring an associate for FREE! For both the member and guest we need first, middle and last name, home address, email address and if you are an American citizen to gain access to the Raytheon building. Substitutions without prior notice will not be allowed access.

Speaker

Katherine A. Hesse, Partner, Murphy Hesse Toomey & Lehane, Boston, Massachusetts

Ms. Hesse, a partner with the Boston law firm of Murphy Hesse Toomey & Lehane, LLP, practices labor and employment and employee benefits law. A graduate of Smith College and Boston University School of Law, she provides general and fiduciary counsel to private, governmental and large not-for-profit clients including multiemployer pension and welfare trusts. Ms. Hesse has litigated employment and benefits cases including a $110 million legal battle over the surplus assets of the former Bank of New England's pension plan. She headed the team of attorneys that was named the only firm in New England and one of only 11 in the United States on the special ERISA fiduciary litigation panel for one of the world's largest insurance companies. Ms. Hesse is past chair of the Labor and Employment Law Section of the Boston Bar Association and has served as president of the International Society of Certified Employee Benefit Specialists and as chair of the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plan's Attorneys Committee. She sits on the Board of Wolters Kluwer Law and Business Pension Editorial Advisory Board and the editorial board of Benefits Quarterly, a journal for benefits professionals.
