

Promoting Financial Wellbeing in a Diverse Workforce Presented by: Willis Towers Watson April 25, 2019

Join the Nebraska Chapter of ISCEBS and Willis Towers Watson on Thursday, April 25, for a discussion on Promoting Financial Wellbeing in a Diverse Workforce.

Do you understand the evolving financial priorities and behaviors of your employees? How significant is the student loan debt issue in your workforce, and what options do you have? As retirement plan sponsors, how do you best support financial wellbeing?

During this breakfast briefing, we'll look at the latest research on financial wellbeing and discuss how employers can more effectively address the issues of financial stress within their workforce. Specifically, we will share insights on employee attitudes regarding financial wellbeing and the support they receive from their employers. We'll discuss trends related to defined contribution plans and share innovations in student loan debt assistance, including an employer case study by Ameritas. Chrystal Meyer will talk about the student loan repayment program Ameritas chose to implement, the costs and benefits of providing the program, and the results the company has seen.

Speakers:

- Alec Dike, Senior Director, Willis Towers Watson, Benefits Advisory and Compliance Group
- Amy Houseman, Director and Minnesota Practice Leader, Willis Towers Watson, Retirement Business
- Jennifer Lewis, Senior Director, Willis Towers Watson, Retirement Business
- Crystal A. Meyer, Director of Human Resource Benefits, Ameritas
